Small caliber, accurate

The .410 caliber is considered a more sporting caliber. Mounted on a 28-gauge action, it allows for a slim, lightweight, and perfectly balanced firearm. Its shot pattern is narrower and less dense, making shooting more demanding. It offers less recoil, improving shooting comfort, but requires greater precision. The margin for error is smaller: more precision is needed in the shot and aiming to hit the target. Despite these characteristics, the .410 caliber remains a very effective caliber when used at appropriate distances and with good marksmanship.

Sturdy construction

The high-strength one-piece steel rocker arm , the double bottom locking mechanism and the interchangeable trunnions ensure maximum longevity, even with regular use.

Neat finish

The 3D engraving on the steel-colored tang and the oiled, sanded walnut wood add a touch of elegance to this light and maneuverable weapon.
