Woodcock rifle with partially rifled lower barrel dispersing for woodcock shooting.

The Fabarm woodcock shotgun is equipped with the PARADOX barrel, developed by Fabarm and appreciated by thousands of European hunters for decades. It features an upper barrel with interchangeable 82mm INNER HP chokes and a lower barrel rifled only for the last 15 centimeters. This partially rifled barrel provides a controlled shot pattern, unlike fully rifled barrels. It is the only PARADOX barrel that does not "empty" the center of the shot pattern. Even at close range, game remains undamaged, and the shot distribution is perfect.

The receiver is made of Ergal with a large steel insert on the breech face, the 61 cm barrel without a rib has a specific sighting rib, all contributing to a weight of 2.75 kg. The shotgun is proofed to 1630 BAR.
