For Mil-Spec receiver extension tubes

The Daniel Defense Adjustable Stock is constructed from a proprietary blend of glass-infused polymers and finished with a soft-touch rubber overmold in strategic locations. The new stock is precision formed for mil-spec receiver extensions to have very little forward or sideways play which is so common in many other stocks. This eliminates the need for a tension device or friction lock.

The result is a durable stock that gives the shooter a comfortable, repeatable cheek weld and unprecedented firearm control. The stock can be used with one of the two included buttpads or without any buttpad in order to adapt the rifle to the equipment carried by the operator. The stops are available in two sizes: a thicker convex shape (0.8") and a thinner concave shape (0.5"), designed to prevent snagging when carrying the rifle. Limited rotation QD attachment points are integrated on both sides of the stock for ambidextrous connection to the sling.
