The latest edition to the Toor Knives family of axes is the F13 Tommy, paying homage to the "Filthy Thirteen" of the 506th Parachute Infantry Regiment of the 101st Airborne Division.

The F13 Tommy is inspired by traditional Native American tomahawks, while incorporating a modern tactical touch. Featuring a 90 degree point at the ax head, this tomahawk is ideal for opening breaches. The tip on the back of the ax head extends the entire length of the tomahawk, providing ample space for the fingers during use. With a handle length of 7.0 inches, it allows for a two-handed grip, increasing hitting power. The extremely durable G10 handle is engraved with a geometric texture for optimal grip.
