Kimber 1911 pistols are renowned for their build quality and accuracy. Based in the United States, Kimber Manufacturing is particularly known for its modernized versions of the famous 1911 pistol, which was originally designed by John Browning and used extensively by the United States military.

G10 pistol grips are grip pads made from a composite material called G10. G10 is a type of high-pressure laminated fiberglass, popular for its strength, durability and resistance to water, solvents and extreme temperatures. This material is also lightweight, making it a popular choice for tactical gear and shooting accessories.

G10 grips are often used to replace standard grips on various types of pistols, providing better grip and improved handling. They come in a variety of textures, from slightly grainy to very aggressive, allowing users to choose the level of grip that suits them best. In addition to functional improvement, G10 grips can also add an aesthetic element to guns, as they are available in a wide array of colors and patterns.

Increasingly popular in the United States, Kimber 1911 pistols made their debut in the early 2000s in the Hollywood cinema industry (John Wick 2, The Purge, Expendables...) and television (Breaking Bad, The Walking Dead, Yellowstone...) and video games (Call of Duty: Modern Warfare, Ghost recon, Far Cry 3...).
