Steel rocker arm: stability and durability

The steel receiver provides natural balance and excellent recoil dampening. When firing, this feeling of stability is immediately apparent, particularly noticeable with the 12/76 gauge. The deep and elegant hunting engraving underscores the high-end character of the firearm.

Selective single trigger or double trigger: to each their own style

Offered with a single selective trigger , the Avian provides modern, fast, and intuitive operation. With a double trigger , it will appeal to purists who appreciate immediate barrel control and traditional gunmaking. Two philosophies, one shared commitment to quality.

Ergonomics designed for hunting

The semi-pistol grip stock, rounded forend, and 7mm ventilated rib all contribute to a smooth and natural shouldering action. The automatic safety and high-performance ejectors enhance user comfort in the field.

A hunting rifle in the noblest sense

Whether for open fields, woods, or game birds, the Avian 12/76 steel shotgun is a reliable, balanced, and elegant weapon. A hunting companion designed to last and be passed down through generations.

FAQ

What is the difference between single trigger and double trigger?

The single selective trigger allows you to choose the firing order of the barrels via a selector. The double trigger offers a separate trigger pull for each barrel, preferred by traditional enthusiasts.

Is this version only offered with a steel rocker arm?

Yes, this sheet relates exclusively to the 12/76 gauge version with steel receiver.

Is the rifle suitable for hunting small game?

Yes, its balance, 71cm barrels and ventilated rib make it an excellent choice for small game.

Are ejectors present on both trigger versions?

Yes, the Caesar Guerini Avian has automatic ejectors regardless of the trigger configuration.
