Designed for simplicity, the MAG Aries combines mechanical robustness with consistent accuracy. It's exactly the kind of rifle that's easy to get to grips with quickly, and whose potential you immediately understand in use.

A solid and proven mechanism

The solid machined steel receiver ensures rigidity and durability. Combined with a three-lug bolt with a 60° opening, the cycle is short, smooth, and secure. Moreover, this type of configuration promotes excellent shot repeatability.

Cold hammer-forged barrel: consistent precision

The 61 cm barrel offers an excellent balance between muzzle velocity and stability. Cold hammer forging ensures remarkable internal consistency - a difference you'll feel immediately when firing. The M14x1 thread allows for the addition of compatible accessories.

Ergonomics and ease of use

The factory-set trigger pull of around 1.5 kg provides a crisp and predictable break. The rubber butt plate enhances comfort, especially during extended sessions. No frills, but effective - and that's precisely what you want here.

Pre-equipped for optics

The included Picatinny rail simplifies scope mounting. A real plus for quick setup, without complex modifications.

FAQ

What is the intended use of the MAG Aries?

It is perfectly suited for hunting as well as sport shooting, thanks to its precision and mechanical reliability.

Is the optical rail included?

Yes, the rifle comes with a Picatinny rail allowing for the quick mounting of optics.

What is the advantage of the 3-lug lock?

It allows for a shorter (60°), faster and smoother opening, while maintaining excellent robustness.
